

Bob Pralle was a founding member of The Village Players in 1978. He was a big presence on our stage and in our group and we have missed his participation. Bob's last performance was in the role of Commander Harbison in South Pacific in 2001, and his first was as Boris Kolenhkov in You Can't Take It with You in 1978, so you can see he has a long history with the group. He also directed a couple of shows and served on the board. Even when he was no longer able to be on stage, Bob was a staunch supporter of the group and attended as many of our shows as he was able. Bob had an unforgettable presence, both physically and intellectually, and those of us who knew him will never forget.
